

CGHE project 2 (digital) session: Democratising collaborative professional development on UN SDGs: From MOOC to CoMOOC

23 May 2023

00:41:26 Simon Marginson: Please join the discussion! Indicate in the Chat your question or statement in response to Sharon's presentation

00:51:07 iPhone: I have a question if I may

00:53:47 Krystian Szadkowski: Thank you very much for this keynote! Excellent, stimulating, intellectually and politically relevant. Coming myself not from particularly privileged context, I wonder what kind of suggestions would you give to people in the South and East - your seven steps are perfect for people already privileged in the Global North - but as far as I can see and tell (even based on the structure of the population of the audience at your keynote), they are not really eager to follow or listen. Maybe there is a need for more proactive strategy? Is a way beyond business as usual is possible without an open conflict?

00:54:18 Vedika Kedia (Organiser): Universities are themselves act as spaces for elite interactions. How do we then ensure that the goals of reparative justice discussed in these spaces are translated to meaningful outcomes for larger community?

00:55:06 Krystian Szadkowski: And thank you very much for making this presentation so technologically friendly - making it more a contact with a human being, rather than power point 😊

00:56:24 Marta Kozłowska: I'd say so human friendly with a purposeful use of technology. 😊 Very impressive.

00:56:38 Lili Yang: Thank you Sharon for the excellent speak! I am keen to hear more about your comments on approaches to bringing in and encouraging multiple players of universities, particularly students.

01:06:11 Altaf Qadeer: Sharon: your presentation is excellent. Thanks to CGHE to organize this amazing program. To join the mind power of all stakeholders, we can consider a new approach : Citizen Education Science [so combining citizen science and education] citizen science + education = citizen education science, to involve all minds, every can show their best way to learn. Everyone has data of some form.

01:13:06 iPhone: Thank you so much for an absolutely fantastic research, actions and the keynote. Your reflections on complicity in higher education are refreshing and illuminating.

01:14:25 Katie: Interesting and enlightening - thanks very much

01:14:47 Marta Kozłowska: Fresh and inspiring - thank you for that along your honesty and humility, shining through!

01:14:50 Lili Yang: Thank you Sharon for the excellent and inspiring sharing!

01:14:51 Helen Young: Thank you so much, Sharon

01:15:19 Syafiqah Abdul Rahim: Thanks very much Sharon!

01:15:32 Krystian Szadkowski: Thank you Sharon!

01:16:44 Marta Kozłowska: Thank you very much to all organisers and participants. Time to move on - with the 7 steps! 😊

01:16:46 iPhone: Such a great conference this year. Thank you to all organizers and yesterday to all who made our lunches and online sessions possible.

01:16:50 Filmor Jacob Murillo: Thank you CGHE for a wonderful conference! Thanks to all resource persons for the great discussion!

01:17:18 Katie: Thanks very much - really interesting and thought provoking conference material
