

Higher Education and the Regional Dimension in England

15 June 2023

00:29:04 Pete Leihy: The Research Development Agencies ran more or less the length of the Blair and Brown govts, and then Learning Enterprise Partnerships have been a continuation or counter-offer since Cameron came in. What is your assessment of those programmes and the role of higher education institutions in them, and can we expect some new approach to replace the LEPs?

00:32:56 Pete Leihy: Local Enterprise Partnerships... it's a real worry that I mistype 'learning'

00:51:02 Simon Marginson: It is time now to come forward with questions, and comments, on Mike's presentation? Should England devolve and decentralise? What are the advantages and disadvantages? What about your own country? POST IN THE CHAT TO JOIN THE DISCUSSION

00:56:41 Alois Baleni: While in the UK and probably European context there is a view of decentralisation, in the broader African and South African context in particular ours is the call for decolonisation and transformation of the higher education system. Do you think while in your context HE discourse could be about decentralisation, it could be a fair call for Africa to have universities of Africa instead of universities in Africa?

01:08:11 CGHE Webinars: Thank you for joining us today. A recording of this session will be posted on the CGHE site:
<https://www.researchcghe.org/events/cghe-seminar/higher-education-and-the-regional-dimension-in-england/>

Our next webinar, What Changes Occurred in Transnational Degree Programs in Chinese Universities from 2003 to 2023? will take place on Tuesday from 2pm (UK). You can register here:

<https://www.researchcghe.org/events/cghe-seminar/what-changes-occurred-in-transnational-degree-programs-in-chinese-universities-from-2003-to-2023/>

01:19:51 Berge Traboulsi: Thank you! Greetings from Beirut, Lebanon.

01:19:53 Pete Leihy: Thanks very much, fascinating stuff