

How do international faculty at Japanese universities view their integration?, 24 June 2021

00:47:28 Lili Yang: Thank you for your presentation. I wonder do you see differences between disciplines?

00:47:54 Akiyoshi Yonezawa: I wonder if the language teachers and teaching faculty is the same. I think the language teachers inevitably feel attachment and identity towards their own linguistic and cultural background. Second, some countries treat language teachers outside of the “faculties”.

00:50:46 Woon Chin Yeong: Thank you for your presentation. I wonder in your research, do you notice that international faculty who comes to Japan feel entitled to be treated as who they are, and on a flip side, do the local Japanese, treat them differently? This sort of behavior is usually evident in the SEA region. Would love to hear your thoughts.

00:56:51 Simon Marginson: Colleagues please come forward now with questions for the Q&A. Lilan and Futao want to hear from you!

01:08:52 CGHE Webinars: Thank you for joining us today, a recording of this session will be on the CGHE site tomorrow: <https://www.researchcghe.org/events/cghe-seminar/how-do-international-faculty-at-japanese-universities-view-their-integration/>

01:09:21 Hexuan Zhang: Did international faculty have problems with academic integration? Meaning did they need to adapt to “Japanese” teaching or bureaucratic style?

01:09:37 CGHE Webinars: Our next webinar will be Tuesday, 'Diaspora and Internationalisation in Higher Education'. You can register here: <https://www.researchcghe.org/events/cghe-seminar/diaspora-and-internationalisation-in-higher-education/>

01:10:14 CGHE Webinars: There is also a Wednesday webinar next week, 'Access can be affordable: Ensuring a sustainable tuition loans system in England'. <https://www.researchcghe.org/events/cghe-seminar/access-can-be-affordable-ensuring-a-sustainable-tuition-loans-system-in-england/>

01:11:35 Bernard Lee: Can Simon ask the questions for me? Apart from language teachers, if foreigners do not speak or write in Japanese, can they still find a professorial job in a Japanese university? I have found most of the Japanese universities only hire people who need to deliver the lesson in Japanese. Correct me if I am wrong. Thanks a lot, Simon!

01:11:39 Woon Chin Yeong: Thanks Lilan for answering to my question. :)

01:16:34 Cristina Carvalho: Thanks, Lilian. It is really nice presentation!

01:16:57 Bernard Lee: Thank you so much, Simon and our speakers, Futao and Lilan!

01:17:02 Gabriel Alfaro: Great presentation. Thank you Lilan.

01:17:23 Trif Victorița: Thank you!

01:17:29 Golaleh Makrooni: Thank you

01:17:30 Woon Chin Yeong: Great session today. Thank you to Prof Simon and all. Take care.

01:17:34 Futao HUANG: Thank you all

01:17:56 Bernard Lee: This is an inspiring webinar!

01:18:10 Monika Jaiswal-Oliver: This was great thank you so much

01:18:33 Lilan Chen: thank you so much for your attention and questions~